<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Object</th>
<th>Description</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Votes For Women</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
| !Image | Jeannette Rankin, The Suffragist, Saturday, March 31, 1917
Image courtesy of the National Woman's Party Collection at the Belmont-Paul Women's Equality National Monument, Washington, D.C. |
| !Image | Jeannette Rankin, Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette, December 3, 1916
Collection of the U.S. House of Representatives |
| !Image | Jeannette Rankin, Letter to Constituents, June 1, 1917
Image courtesy of Archives and Special Collections, Mansfield Library, University of Montana |
| !Image | Jeannette Rankin, April 2, 1917
Courtesy of the Montana Historical Society, Helena |
| !Image | Jeannette Rankin, Visitor’s Gallery Pass, June 6, 1917
Collection of the U.S. House of Representatives |
| !Image | H. J. Res. 1, Joint Resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution extending the right of suffrage to women, May 20, 1919
Image courtesy of the National Archives and Records Administration |
"Come to Mother"
Recounting the Darkest Action of Mrs. Eliza Smathers of Hammondton, N. J., Who, Thrice Wounded by Hold-Up Men, Drives an Automobile Through a Field of Bullets and Shoots to Save $4,000, at the Cost of Two Lives and Serious Injury to Her Father and a Friend.

By EDWARD J. HUTCHESON

In the blood-stained crossties of the Jersey farming land was killed one of those valiant dames of our own times whose moral purpose seems to be the illuminating of moral issues. It was one of those loud-sounding-sounders and light-sounding-brighters which almost seem designed to enshrine a battle, thereby to point a people for a millennium.

In the meantime the press effect is to call it "How to be Fortified" or &c. &c. It is more important by head. If the menace of surfeiture brings about some concrete consequences which might have been caused by the anarchy of private goods, can the same thing be done? If prices are not, then it is impossible to ever the whole wealth without asking what is the inoperative result of those falsehoods and whether books be not already held.

A. D. Rider of Houghton, N. J., is a very wealthy country grocer with standard business in the Jersey town—a man fairly well known in that corner as "The Cranberry King"—not in the wearing of a cap to show about Houghton in a team from that of Finley, the second city.

For the most mannerly of the robber's piquets. When we avoid from the present: if, then, the propriety of a formal kind of politeness may be attempted. The entire state of the mind was striking. And even the very last step toward any sign of danger, for he took with him a revolver. On this journey, as was accompanied by his brother, Henry D. Rider of Dowell, N. J., who, with his mother, Miss Edith Ridgley of Hammondton, a planning concurrence, and Mrs. Eliza Smathers, went through the face of.

"I did the Instructive thing," says Mrs. Eliza Smathers, "when I went home to see if I could not be of some comfort to the house where she was staying. Her husband was away. There was danger of the house being taken over by force. The time was light at the moment when the action began. But I had to return."

The house was light at the moment when the action began. But I had to return.

Another bullet struck her in the breast, as she got under way..."The bullets are flying out along the road, fraying rottenly..."

WHERE HEROISM CEASES AND FOLLY BEGINS

Another bullet struck her in the breast, as she got under way..."The bullets are flying out along the road, fraying rottenly..."

OUR FIRST CONGRESS-WOMAN

A Geraldine, showing off with the confidence of a maiden the story of a child and the money she has spent on her, with a small crowd of onlookers, at a New York hotel, was recently the scene of a tense situation. The story of her, that of the money she has spent on her, with a small crowd of onlookers, at a New York hotel, was recently the scene of a tense situation.

What wanes needed was this, then the desired, was political method, and not the advance of the power of the new machinery. The story of the power of the new machinery, the story of the money she has spent on her, with a small crowd of onlookers, at a New York hotel, was recently the scene of a tense situation.

The story of the power of the new machinery, the story of the money she has spent on her, with a small crowd of onlookers, at a New York hotel, was recently the scene of a tense situation.
Dear Friend:-

I have been deeply concerned about the war, just as you have been, else I should have written to you sooner.

While we are anxiously doing what we can to help with the war, we must not forget that the homes we are fighting to protect and the children who are to be future citizens, need the attention of every woman. For if our homes and our children are neglected at this time, we shall lose more than we will gain. I know you have been thinking about these things, and will be interested in the bulletins I am sending you.

In spite of the fact that the women all over the country seem to claim me as their special representative, my first service shall always be to you folks out home, and I want you to feel perfectly free to call upon me whenever I can be of the slightest service to you.

No doubt you have read in the papers about my "red hair" and "sending the fathers to war" and other inventions of the eastern press. I wish you were here to see Congress working and to know the true facts.

I wish you would find a moment to write to me.

Faithfully yours,
MEMBER'S PASS.

House of Representatives.

Washington, D.C., June 6, 1917

ADMIT

Mr. O. J. D. White
TO THE VISITOR'S GALLERY

For

Herewith Hanzel

M.C. FROM

Montana
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

MAY 19, 1919.

Mr. Mann introduced the following joint resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Woman Suffrage and ordered to be printed.

MAY 20, 1919.

Referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to the Constitution extending the right of suffrage to women.

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled (two-thirds of each House concurring therein), That the following article is proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, which shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the Constitution when ratified by the legislatures of three-fourths of the several States.

"ARTICLE———.

"The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State on account of sex.

"Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation."