Making a Newsletter
Linda Steele explains how she and her colleagues produced a weekly newsletter from Representative Stan Tupper’s D.C. office.
Interview recorded June 7, 2016

Stan Tupper was an excellent writer, and so he would write a weekly newsletter, and we had a mimeograph machine. We would type this thing out, I think it was like on purple paper or something, or purple ink, and then that thing—we, we would run off our own newsletters. And then on the Addressograph we had these cards that you would type in individual addresses, and then this machine would feed all these cards through and print on—print addresses on envelopes. So we would do the whole job ourselves, stuff them, and send them.
