INTRODUCTION

Investigation of real estate bondholders' reorganizations was first proposed in the House of Representatives when Representative Thomas O'Malley of Wisconsin introduced his House Joint Resolution 137 on March 30, 1933. It was not acted upon. On February 5, 1934, together with Senator Patrick A. McCarran, Representative O'Malley presented a second resolution (H.Con.Res. 31) which was to look into bondholders real estate committees, reorganizations, bankruptcies, and receiverships. It did not go beyond the House Committee on Rules. Thereafter Representatives Kent E. Keller and Adolph J. Sabath, both of Illinois, introduced similar resolutions. On June 1, 1934, the Committee on Rules brought out a composite product of the three resolutions introduced by the three gentlemen mentioned above.

What was the situation which called for the investigation of this kind? What persuaded the House to create a committee for this purpose? Representative O'Malley, in urging the passage of House Resolution 412 on June 15, 1934 explained the situation as follows:

... From 1920 to 1929 billions of dollars' worth of bonds, secured by real property in this country, were sold to American investors, most of these investors being persons of small incomes. These people, lured into the purchase of these securities by offers of high interest and widely publicized propaganda of safety for their investment, put their small life savings entirely into this type of security.

When the depression came, many of these properties were unable to sustain the interest charges on the bonds or make any payments upon principal, but a great many of the properties were still paying and obtaining revenue sufficient to pay some money to the investors. A group of racketeers who have increased in numbers tremendously...

in the past few years, however, saw in the depression an opportunity to reap huge profits at the expense of these investors in these bonds and using depression hysteria, forced, by means of false statements and absolutely misleading propaganda, a vast majority of these investors to turn their securities over to so-called 'protective' committees, obtaining with the deposit agreements on these bonds powers of attorney that gave the committee absolute authority to manage and exploit the building securing the bonds . . .

More than 1,000,000 of our American citizens have investments in these kinds of securities. These investments have been mishandled and misappropriated by committees of attorneys, inside operators, brokers, owners, and professional financial racketeers in scores of cases, and unless the Congress of the United States authorizes the investigation, it would be doubtful if these hundreds of thousands of small investors will be able to get fair treatment and salvage anything of their hard-earned investments.2

There were good reasons for an investigation of this kind; a great number complaints were received by members of Congress that bondholders' committees were serving special interests and not the bondholders in general; these committees, their lawyers, and accountants were charging exorbitant fees; the courts were not properly advised with respect to the plans of reorganizations, and as a result bondholders were being defrauded; section 77B of the National Bankruptcy Act permitted certain abuses which could only be stopped by an amendment of the Act. Representative John J. O'Connor of New York received 10,000 complaint letters; Representative Sabath received a petition signed by 500,000 complaining bondholders; and other members of Congress received additional thousands more of complaints from holders of defaulted securities asking parades were held in metropolitan cities ing relief from Congress. In metropolitan cities there were parades of fifteen or twenty-thousand or more people protesting that something be done about the situation. Such made the passage of House Resolution H12 imperative.

2/Thomas O'Malley of Wisconsin on consideration of H.Res. H12. Congressional Records, 73rd Cong., 2nd sess, (1934), 11775 House Resolution 412 was agreed to on June 15, 1934. It authorized the Speaker of the House to appoint a committee of seven to investigate the activities and practices of real estate reorganizations, and bondholders' protective committees. Thus the Select Committee to Investigate Real Estate Bondholders' Reorganizations was created. Stated more fully, House Resolution 412 defines the duties of the committee as follows:

... to investigate the methods of organization, the activities and practices of real estate reorganization or 'bondholders' committees, or similar or other groups, by use of the mails or otherwise, to determine whether misrepresentation or unfairness have been practiced in acquiring or representing such securities, in assessing expenses against the bondholders and disposing of, or managing the properties by such committees, trustees, receivers, or other persons against which the securities were issued as liens, and in the employment of attorneys or other persons, or in failing adequately to report to said security owners, and in what manner the rights and equities of bondholders and owners can be protected against undue and unjustified loss upon their investment. The committee shall report to the Congress as soon as practicable the results of its study together with its recommendations for necessary legislation.

Later the powers of the committee were enlarged and supplemented by House Resolutions 39, 79, and 354 of the Seventy-Fourth Congress. House Resolution 39, which was agreed to on January 8, 1935, continued the investigation begun under House Resolution 412. House Resolution 79, which was agreed to on February 8, 1935, added the following power:

Sec. 3. Whenever, in the opinion of the committee, evidence is developed in connection with the investigation which discloses or tends to disclose any violation of the Federal law, the committee is authorized and directed to request the Department of Justice, the Post Office Department, and the Treasury Department, or any other Federal agency (whichever department or agency has jurisdiction to administer such law) to assign attorneys or agents thereof to the committee.

House Resolution 354, which was agreed to on August 23, 1953, further enlarged the scope of the investigation by authorizing the committee to look into the matter of receivers' and lawyers' fees, in addition to the investigation of the protective committees. House Resolution 354 also empowered the committee to appear in any court through its duly authorized representative and furnish the court with evidence in its possession in connection with reorganization proceedings under section 7h or 7f of the National Bankruptcy Act.

On June 15, the last day of the Seventy-third Congress, the Speaker appointed Representatives Sabath, O'Connor, Claude A. Fuller of Arkansas, O'Malley, James J. Connolly of Pennsylvania, Francis D. Culkin of New York, and Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois as members of the committee. In the next Congress Representative Connolly did not return to Congress, and his seat on the committee remained vacant throughout the entire life of the committee. During the second session of the Seventy-fourth Congress, Representative O'Connor resigned and was replaced by Representative Martin J. Kennedy of New York. Representative Sabath served as chairman for the duration of the committee. E.J. Comer was the technical adviser and Murray E. Garsson was the director of investigation of the committee.

The organization of the series of records in this inventory is based on the administrative setup of the operating offices that were created by the committee to carry out the duties imposed upon it by the House Resolution 412.
of the Seventy-third Congress and by House Resolutions 39, 79, and 35h of the Seventy-fourth Congress. Washington, D.C. was, of course, the main office and;
In addition to the central office in Washington, D.C. therefore, the first to be dealt with. In 1933 field offices were established at Boston, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, Milwaukee, New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis, and San Francisco. Each of these offices created and gathered materials relating to the investigation of real estate bondholders reorganizations.
Since the records of these offices are distinct and separate from each other, the records described in this inventory are arranged as follows: Records of the Washington office; followed successively by the records of the offices of Boston, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis, and San Francisco; then finally by the records of hearings, reports, and recommended legislation. The records of the Milwaukee office, however, do not constitute a separate and distinct series, for the materials from that office have been inter-filed with those of the Washington office. (See entry 6).

Because of insufficient funds the field offices were not fully staffed. Public-spirited accountants, investigators, and lawyers offered their services without compensation. The Treasury Department reassigned some of its employees to work with the committee; the same was true of other agencies of the Government. The personnel in charge of the field offices were as follows: Boston, Leo Hopkins; Chicago, Joseph L. Tupy; Detroit, Hyman Kransberg; Los Angeles, B. P. Calhoun; Milwaukee, Joseph N. Swerdloff; New York, Murray W. Garsson; Philadelphia, James J. McGinnis; St. Louis, Joseph A. Lemon; and San Francisco, Walter E.
Hettman.
There were three methods by which the records described in this inventory were gathered by the staff and members of the committee, namely, (1) questionnaires and correspondence, (2) private hearings, and (3) public hearings.

During the early life of the committee — that is, the latter part of 1934 to the early part of 1935 — investigation was conducted almost entirely from Washington, D.C. Questionnaires were sent to protective committees of houses of issue of real estate bonds. Questionnaires were published in newspapers and magazines throughout the Nation requesting holders of defaulted securities to so inform the committee. The records resulting from these are those described in entries 5 and 7. In the field offices the questionnaire method was also applied, resulting in the bulk of the materials in their files.

Private hearings were widely used in the field offices. They were held by members of the staff, usually the counsel of the office. At these proceedings testimony was given by members of protective committees, lawyers, bankers, and the like — and sometimes by complaining bondholders. This method of gathering evidence was extensively used by the Philadelphia office as shown by its separate files on testimony (See entry 33). The Philadelphia testimony was given at these private hearings between May 31, 1935 and August 6, 1936; after the latter date, each testimony given was thenceforth filed with the case to which it related. The same procedure was adopted in other field offices, although the use of it was not as extensive as in Philadelphia.

Public hearings were conducted by the whole membership of the committee or by subcommittees conducted by one or two of its members. According to Chairman Sabath the public hearings were held "to bring to light and arouse, public opinion regarding the activities and practices of bondholders protective committees, which were sponsored by houses of issue, bankers, mortgage companies, trust companies, and the like. Between September 1934 and December 1936 hearings were held at Boston, Chicago, Detroit, Los Angeles, Manchester (N.H.), Miami (Fla.), Milwaukee, New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis, San Francisco, and Washington, D.C. From these proceedings resulted 20 cubic feet of public hearings, consisting of printer's copies, galley proofs, and transcripts.

The authority of the committee to conduct investigations and to hold hearings ceased at the end of 1936. On January 21, 1937, Chairman Sabath tried unsuccessfully to continue the substantive work of the committee by introducing House Resolution 78. It was not acted upon. However, House Resolution 259, agreed to August 9, 1937, as amended provided the sum of $7,134.94 to wind up the affairs of the committee and the committee submitted it. House Resolution 259 was agreed to on August 9, 1937, and when the final report of the committee was completed on May 16, 1938, the work of the committee was finished.

House Resolution 412 required the committee to "report to the Congress as soon as practicable the results of its study together with recommendations for necessary legislation." The committee made three reports. The first, called the Preliminary Report, was submitted on January 29, 1935; the second, called the Supplemental Report, was submitted on June 19, 1936; and the third, called the Final Report, was completed on May 16, 1938.

Bills recommended by the committee are enumerated in entry 480. Only one of those bills was successful, being incorporated in a general revision of the National Bankruptcy Act (namely, the Sabath bill H.R. 6963). This bill went through the House but died in the Senate. The Chandler bill, H.R. 8046, on the other hand, which constituted a general revision of the Bankruptcy Act, inclusive of that phase dealt with in the Sabath bill, passed both houses of Congress, on June 13, 1938. The provisions of Chapter I of H.R. 8046 are quite similar to the Sabath bill H.R. 6963. During the consideration of H.R.
8046 by the House on June 13, 1938, Representative Walter Chandler of Tennessee said as follows:

Before concluding, I would like to state that the Senate and House Judiciary Committees have been aided greatly by the investigations conducted by the select committee . . . of which the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. Sabath) is chairman; and the provisions of chapter I relating to participation by the Securities and Exchange Commission in reorganization proceedings are quite similar to the Sabath bill which the House passed last year. Some of its provisions have been incorporated in the bill now before the House . . .

This work is a preliminary inventory of a part of Record Group 233, Records of the House of Representatives, consisting of all records of the Select Committee to Investigate Bondholders' Reorganizations. These records were transferred to the National Archives on December 20, 1950. The total volume is approximately 236 cubic feet.

Unpublished records relating to this investigation may not be examined nor may information from them be furnished to anyone without the express authori-ization of the House of Representatives.

Records of Bondholders Legislation

RECORDS RELATING TO BONDHOLDERS LEGISLATION. 1934-38. 5 ft. 40

Copies of printed bills, resolutions, hearings, and house reports; analyses, drafts, and amendments of bills; correspondence, clippings, memoranda, work papers, and various papers accompanying the bills. The empowering resolution (H.Res. 412) allowed the Select Committee to recommend legislation as a result of its findings. Pursuant to this provision the following bondholders legislation are included in this series: H.R. 7894, H.R. 10634, and H.R. 12064 of the 74th Congress; H.R. 9, H.R. 6962, H.R. 6963, H.R. 6970, and H.R. 8046 of the 75th Congress; and various other bills and resolutions. Included are miscellaneous papers relating to Annual Report of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for the Fiscal Year Ended June 30, 1936; Annual Report of the Comptroller of the Currency for the Year Ended October 31, 1935; insurance, state reorganization laws, and Supreme Court Decisions regarding bankruptcy. Arranged by bill number.
APPENDIX

LISTS OF FOLDER HEADINGS FOR SERIES OF RECORDS

The following lists were copied from those that accompanied the records of each office when they were transferred to the National Archives. The records listed in Section B were numerically arranged and those in Section I by initial letter of the alphabet. Many of the folder headings listed in Section B are duplicated in the records of the other sections. Their contents, however, are not necessarily the same. The obvious reason for this is that the investigation conducted from Washington during the early months of the committee's existence was nation-wide.
