Elections & Districts

Election Statistics

Historically, John Dingell, Jr., won his 30 elections to the House by an average of 73 percent of the vote.

Congressional Districts

Michigan 15th District (John Dingell, Sr., and John Dingell, Jr.), 1933–1962

As a result of the 1930 Census, the 1932 reapportionment of congressional districts in Michigan increased the state's number of House seats from 13 to 15. John Dingell, Sr. was elected to the 15th District, which encompassed four city wards in Detroit (Wards 10, 12, 14, and 16). The district remained the same throughout the elder Dingell's terms of service. John Dingell, Jr., represented the same four wards upon his election to the House in December 1955.

Michigan 15th/16th District (John Dingell, Jr.), 1963–1972

The boundaries of the district did not change after the reapportionment in 1962, but it was renamed the 16th District by the start of the 89th Congress (1965–1967).

Michigan 16th District (John Dingell, Jr.), 1973–1982

A slight change took place in the 1972 reapportionment in which Dingell's district still contained parts of wards 14, 16, 18, and all of ward 20, but certain western and southern suburbs of Wayne County such as Dearborn (home of the Ford Motor Company), Wyandotte, and Trenton were added to the 16th.

Michigan 16th District (John Dingell, Jr.), 1983–1992

In the 1982 reapportionment, Dingell's district lost the city wards, but it expanded to include larger sections of southern and western Wayne County, all of Monroe County, and parts of Lenawee County. The district also extended further south along the Michigan's coastline with Lake Erie to the state's border with Ohio.

Michigan 16th District (John Dingell, Jr.), 1993–2002

By 1993, Dingell's district retained the southeastern and central sections of Wayne and most of Monroe County. The Lenawee County portions were reapportioned to the 7th District.

Michigan 15th District (John Dingell, Jr.), 2003–2012

In 2003, the newly renamed 15th District retained all of Monroe County and the western portion of Wayne County, but also extended along the I-94 highway to encompass part of Washtenaw County, an important engineering and research corridor that includes the University of Michigan's main campus in Ann Arbor.

Michigan 12th District (John Dingell, Jr., and Debbie Dingell), 2013–present

In 2013, the newly renamed 12th District retained southern Wayne County and a significant part of Washtenaw County, but Monroe County was reapportioned to the 7th District. The current district is anchored by Dearborn in the east, Ann Arbor in the west, and Trenton to the south along Lake Erie.
